Labor and Human Rights

Suppliers must recognize and be committed to upholding the human rights of workers, and to treat them with dignity and respect as understood by the international community. The labor standards are:

Involuntary Labor and Human Trafficking

All work must be voluntary. Suppliers shall not use forced, bonded (including debt bondage) or indentured labor, involuntary prison labor, slavery, or trafficking of persons. This includes transporting, harboring, recruiting, transferring, or receiving vulnerable persons by means of threat, force, coercion, abduction or fraud, or payments to any person having control over another person for the purpose of exploitation.

Suppliers' workers must not be required to surrender any government-issued identification, passports, or work permits as a condition of employment. Suppliers or labor dispatch agencies shall not receive deposits or fees (e.g. recruitment or hiring fees) from workers. Suppliers' workers' contracts shall clearly convey the conditions of employment in a language understood by the workers. Third-party recruitment agencies used by Suppliers shall be compliant with the provisions of this Code and applicable laws and regulations.

Underage Labor

Suppliers shall employ only workers who are at least 15 years of age or the applicable minimum legal age, whichever is higher. If any underage labor is detected, the Supplier shall immediately stop such underage labor and ensure the worker recruitment process includes robust safeguards adequate to detect and prevent underage labor from being employed in the future. The use of legitimate student intern programs, which comply with all applicable laws, regulations, and applicable International Labor Organization ("ILO") conventions, is supported.

Young workers over the legal minimum age for employment may be hired, however, young workers under the age of 18 shall not perform work that could jeopardize the health or safety of young workers, including night shifts and overtime, or work longer hours than is permitted by local law and consistent with applicable ILO conventions.

Working Hours

Humane Treatment

Suppliers shall clearly define and communicate disciplinary policies and procedures in support of these requirements to workers.

Non-Discrimination
